

1

Can you apply for the CEDA if you are a previous recipient or applicant?

Yes. There are no restrictions for applying in multiple years. However you may not submit the same project more than once.

2

What constitutes the time period for the start of a project in order to qualify?

Ground breaking, signed lease or executed contract. A press release or announcement is not sufficient.

3

Can multiple entries from the same organization/entity be submitted in the same year?

No. An application from different entities that are from the same community/region may apply, but not multiple submittals from the same organization/entity.

4

How do I determine the appropriate population category for my submittal if I am part of a regional group?

If submitting an entry for a city or county, use the most recently published census population. If submitting an entry for a multi-community region, use the census population for the project's area (i.e., portion of region affected or involved in the project).

5

Can the narrative portion of the application be double-spaced?

Yes. Spacing of the text can be single or doubled spaced as long as the narrative portion does not exceed (4) 8 1/2 x 11 pages.

6

Can I submit a comprehensive application of multiple projects or a program?

Yes. You can submit an application that summarizes a program or multiple projects into one application.

7

Our community is small, and our projects aren't capital intensive or major job creators. Is it still worth applying?

CEDA celebrates impact, not just scale. If your project made a meaningful difference in your community, no matter the size, it's worth sharing.
